

ERRATUM

AN INVESTIGATION OF VISION PROBLEMS AND THE VISION CARE SYSTEM IN RURAL CHINA

Yunli Bai^{1,2}, Hongmei Yi¹, Linxiu Zhang¹, Yaojiang Shi³, Xiaochen Ma⁴, Nathan Congdon^{5,6}, Zhongqiang Zhou⁵, Matthew Boswell⁷ and Scott Rozelle⁷

¹Center for Chinese Agricultural Policy, Institute of Geographical Sciences and Natural Resources Research, Chinese Academy of Sciences, Beijing; ²University of Chinese Academy of Sciences, Beijing; ³Center for Experimental Economics in Education, Shaanxi Normal University, Xi'an, China; ⁴Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics, University of California, Davis, USA; ⁵State Key Laboratory and Division of Preventive Ophthalmology, Zhongshan Ophthalmic Center, Sun Yat-sen University, Guangzhou, China; ⁶ORBIS International, New York, USA; ⁷Stanford University, Stanford, USA

In the Southeast Asian Journal of Tropical Medicine and Public Health 2014; 45(6): 1464-1473, the word "Optician" in Table 2, 2nd line, of the above article was inadvertently misspelled, the corrected spelling is as follows:

Table 2
Private vision care professionals.

	Unit	Weighted average
Level of education	Years	12
Optometry certification (advanced or higher)	Percent	46
Optician certification	Percent	30